My Self Reflection

Provided from the constructive feedback I have received from my peers and from assessing their wireframes, I have realised that my wireframe displayed inefficiency towards focus and productivity. Comparing my wireframe to my peers showed me one distinct scenario I lacked in terms of the user's needs. I provided features that only accommodated organisation and file management, and I lacked in terms of features that offered efficient note-taking such as citation tools or tooltips. I failed to display more collaborative features from the proposal as my wireframe only displayed capabilities of exporting and sharing files but never features for real time collaboration.

The features I have mentioned above are certainly part of the things I will improve on my wireframe. My peers' wireframes displayed features that I personally did not consider such as timetables, deadline pop ups and group notebooks, which I believe displays effective user focus. I am considering improving the layout of the main screen as one mentioned to avoid clutter and focus on simplicity. I plan to remove audio and video file formats as I do agree from my feedback that it is unnecessary and inefficient for users who want to maintain productivity and focus.

To conclude, I would like to add and improve features, not only for organisation scenarios but would express aid for users who consistently take notes and for those who work in collaborative situations. At most, I would want my wireframe to achieve a better user-friendly environment.
